

DONOR PRIVACY

YOUR PRIVACY IS IMPORTANT TO US

Privacy Policy Statement

The Berkeley Public Library Foundation (BPLF) is committed to long-term relationships with our donors and handles donor information with care and confidentiality. We are dedicated to respecting the privacy rights of our donors.

Personal Information

The BPLF collects email addresses when you subscribe to the BPLF newsletter, electronic communications, or make a donation online. The BPLF does not sell or rent this information with third parties. Subscribers are given the opportunity to remove or “unsubscribe” from our email list at the bottom of each e-newsletter.

BPLF collects donor names, mailing addresses and other information in connection with contributions. We do not rent or sell donor information to third parties.

Online Donation Security

Your online donations are safe and secure. The BPLF uses industry-standard SSL (Secure Sockets Layer) encryption to protect the confidentiality of your personal information and the security of your transaction. The BPLF sends an acknowledgment to all donors who provide the information needed for us to do so. Online transactions are confirmed by a follow-up email.

Upon request, the BPLF will remove your name from our mailing list, email list, and/or telephone solicitation list at any time. If you have any questions or would like more information about your options, please feel free to call us at 510-981-6115 or email info@bplf.org.

Donating Online

If you make an online donation via our website your name, mailing address, telephone number, email address, and credit card information will be used to process your transactions and send relevant information about your gift. If you prefer, you may donate by credit card by calling the BPLF office directly at 510-981-6115.

Questions

If you have any questions about this privacy statement, the practices of this site, or your dealings with this website, you can contact us at: info@bplf.org or call 510-981-6115.
